Dear Parents,

There are always so many people giving so much of their own time, energy and resources to make our school such a wonderful place for our students to learn and play.

On the weekend there was a small but hardworking group of parents at school busy in the gardens and grounds, there are also many people who work 'behind the scenes' and this week I was so fortunate to be able to call on the skill, expertise and generosity of Craig (Dad of Nuala and Isaac) who spent hours recovering the data from the administrator's laptop and making sure that our system was up and running very quickly. Thank you Craig! This was a reminder about how much of our world is now reliant on being 'wired in' so to speak!

I encourage you to contemplate an article in this edition of Silver Leaves that describes an experiment by some students about the effects of wifi on living cells. Speaking of living cells, the school vegetable garden is flourishing with all the rain we have been having and I am quite sure the plants grew before our very eyes with the lovely sunshine we had on Saturday! Keep an eye open at the market stall for the garden produce on sale.

Blessings,

Donna Bieundurry

NEWS FROM THE CLASSROOM

KOORRDJENANGIN NEWS

We have now begun our new main lesson 'Creation Stories', which will run for the next three weeks. This main lesson follows on from the Aboriginal Dreamtime Stories main lesson earlier in the year. This Class 3 main lesson meets the needs of the 9 year old child, who at this age gradually awakens to the difference between their own sense of self and the surrounding world. This is a time of transition between unconscious perception of the world to a more conscious view and can bring a sense of insecurity for the child and a feeling of separation from what was secure and supportive. The child awakens to their own sense of individuality, with their own thoughts and feelings and in this process may experience a sense of isolation and loss.

As a result, the 9 year old child looks at the world as a more self-conscious individual. This moment provides an opportunity to consider the great themes of humanity: Creation, Tradition and Authority and how they impact on individuality. Looking back at the history of humanity these themes are explored in some of the great narratives of ancient cultures and it is precisely these stories that are valuable for children of this age to hear. The stories about creation from the Hebrew Testament for example explore rather than answer the questions the child has during this time. These questions include such as: What is my place in the world? How did the world begin? Where do I come from? It is no coincidence that the play I wrote for the class recently, 'Yonga Tales' explored themes of authority amongst other things.

It is important for parents to understand that the Creation Stories told by the teacher in this main lesson are not treated as statements of presumed fact or linked to any particular support of a religion or faith. The Steiner curriculum seeks to expose the child to stories from many of the world's great faiths and cultures at significant points in their childhood. As you will recall we began in Class 1 and 2 with fairy tales and fables from many cultures including Aboriginal Australia, Japan, Europe and Indonesia. In later years, the class will explore narratives from the ancient cultures of Mesopotamia, India, Egypt, Greece and Rome. The children will hear stories linked to the religions of Hinduism, Buddhism, Islam and Christianity.

This 'Creation Stories' main lesson and several subsequent main lessons will be closely linked to the Hebrew culture and the class will later learn many folk songs from Israel. Later in the year or early next year we will also visit the Jewish Synagogue in Perth. If there are any parents or grandparents who are Jewish or have a connection to this culture, language or religion I would love to talk to you and see how we could incorporate your knowledge and insights into the class. If anyone has any objects such as a 9-branched Menorah (Hanukkah) please let me know. Likewise, my Hebrew pronunciation, despite my best intentions, is likely to be faulty – again let me know as soon as possible if you speak Hebrew!

PILGRIMS NEWS

The Pilgrims are to be given a belated “hip, hip, hooray” for their medieval projects that were handed in and presented a couple of weeks ago.

As a teacher, it’s sometimes hard to know whether your ideas for lesson content and how you deliver them more to the point, are going to resonate with the children. This was the case with the project. For me, the medieval era is a plethora of all things gruesome, gory, beautiful, mystical, mythical and fascinating and an era I never have any trouble connecting with (read what thou wilt into that)!! However, would my enthusiasm translate to the children feeling enthused? A resounding YES was the answer to that.

The Pilgrims certainly rose to the challenge of this project. In contrast to previous projects, I felt the Pilgrims were now ready to take a greater step in becoming more autonomous and responsible for their own learning. They had to pick a topic from a list of several and research as much as possible on their chosen topic and report back to me by way of a written report, an artistic element, and an oral presentation.

What I loved the most, as always, was that each child’s individual creative spirit came to the fore. Each piece of work handed in to me was completely different. I received a scroll, booklets, typed, hand-written work, and when it came to the presentations each one came with its own individuality too. We had an original song (which was interrupted by a 20-strong tour group led by Hayley. Thankfully the singer in question was undeterred and carried on regardless - amazing), a role-play (which was hilarious and teacher always loves to laugh – so brownie points there), some medieval food (way to a woman’s heart – well done) an amazing model which was handmade over a weekend, some lovely illustrations, demonstrations, and a doll (made in craft and used for the medieval project – great idea). As if that was not enough, ALL the children were able to answer a myriad of questions that came their way with ease and apart from the content, each child’s individuality was given the time to shine and be celebrated. Coupled with a good healthy dose of confidence, even from those so-called shy children, the whole exercise reaffirmed for me the beauty and the magic of this most amazing curriculum, which I am so honoured to deliver.

I am very proud of this group of very gifted children and as we edge ever-closer to the end of our journey together, I can’t wait to see what lies in store and the many gifts these children will impart in the years to come. I will be watching with bated breath.

Blessings,

Yvette

STUDENT SCIENCE EXPERIMENT FINDS PLANTS WON'T GROW NEAR WIFI ROUTER

By MATHIAS BOHN

Five ninth-grade young women from Denmark recently created a science experiment that is causing a stir in the scientific community.

It started with an observation and a question. The girls noticed that if they slept with their mobile phones near their heads at night, they often had difficulty concentrating at school the next day. They wanted to test the effect of a cellphone’s radiation on humans, but their school, Hjallerup School in Denmark, did not have the equipment to handle such an experiment. So the girls designed an experiment that would test the effect of cellphone radiation on a plant instead.

The students placed six trays filled with Lepidium sativum, a type of garden cress, into a room without radiation, and six trays of the seeds into another room next to two routers that according to the girls' calculations, emitted about the same type of radiation as an ordinary cellphone.

Over the next 12 days, the girls observed, measured, weighed and photographed their results. By the end of the experiment the results were blatantly obvious — the cress seeds placed near the router had not grown. Many of them were completely dead. Meanwhile, the cress seeds planted in the other room, away from the routers, thrived.

The experiment earned the girls top honors in a regional science competition and the interest of scientists around the world. According to Kim Horsevad, a teacher at Hjallerup Skole in Denmark where the cress experiment took place, a neuroscience professor at the Karolinska Institute in Sweden, is interested in repeating the experiment in a controlled professional scientific environment.

NEWS FROM THE SCHOOL

MID-TERM BREAK - This Friday 30th August and Monday 2nd September

BOOK WEEK AND INDIGENOUS LITERACY DAY

On Wednesday, September 4th (next week), the primary school will be both celebrating the world of stories and supporting children in remote Indigenous communities.

On this day, students are welcome to come to school dressed as their favourite book character. We ask that dress ups avoid commercially promoted characters and are 'home made' or sourced from the likes of op shops. Children are also welcome to participate in a fundraising book swap. To partake, children need to bring to class a book that they love, but can bear to part with. Please can they do this by Tuesday 3rd September at the latest (earlier would be appreciated). On Wednesday September 4th, as well as dressing up, children bring along a gold coin to purchase a book from the subsequent book stall. Stalls will be held at recess time; a junior primary stall on the Class 1 verandah and an upper primary stall on the Wayfarer's verandah. Funds raised will support the Indigenous Literacy Foundation in improving literacy levels in remote indigenous communities.

What kind of books do we donate? Please endeavour to donate a book with beautiful pictures and story, avoiding cartoons and commercially promoted characters. Can children in Class 1, 2 and 3 please bring non-fiction/story books only.

SCHOOL ORCHESTRAL PERFORMANCE BY PERTH WALDORF SCHOOL

Perth Waldorf School have very kindly offered to visit Silver Tree to present an Orchestral Performance to our Primary Students. On Thursday 5th September, the Silver Tree children will be transported by bus to the Parkerville Hall for the performance. Please ensure your permission notes are returned by this Friday 30th August 2013.

WEBPAGE HELP

Are you a whizz with Wordpress or web development? The school needs someone to take over our website updates from 2014. Could you be this person? This would cover your PPS hours for the year. If you would like more information, please contact Hayley on community@silvertree.wa.edu.au.

PLANT PICKUP

Are you looking for a job to do to accumulate some PPS hours. We need someone with a trailer or ute to pick up 9 native trees in pots from Waldecks Nursery in Bentley. The trees are the beautiful Corymbia Ficifolias to beautify and provide shade in our carpark...yay. If you are keen, please contact Kim Holland on 0419 579 429 for details.

HEADLICE

Cases of head lice have been reported by parents with children in the Kindy Classes. Please check your children and follow the recommended treatment and process for head lice. Do not send children back to school until the outbreak is controlled. There is a natural treatment available for head lice in the school shop.

PICNIC, BUSHTUCKER SNAKE SHAPING AND CHILDREN'S KITE MAKING

Thanks to PALS we have been lucky enough to receive funding to create a Bush Tucker Garden here at Silver Tree and to make this project really special, we've decided a Snake Theme would be creative and fun! Here's where you come in – we would like to invite all families to come along to the school on Monday 2nd September (yes, one of the Mid-Term break days) at 9.30am – 12.00pm to help us create our Snake Shape out of the existing mulch. We will then fill the middle in with good soil purchased with the grant money and the kids will be planting it out during their gardening days two weeks later when the bush tucker plants arrive. So please come along with a picnic for you and your children and we'll have some fun. While you are planting, the children will have the option to be a part of the kite making session with Dion and Charles (Kindy Dads). Please register your interest with Bronwyn or Marijanna via the office. Thank you

SILVER TREE GARDENING AND ENVIRONMENT MANAGEMENT COMMITTEE NEWS

Our appreciation to parents and siblings who joined Class 1, the Wayfarers and GEMs members on Friday morning to plant some of the native plant species the school received from the Mundaring Shire's understory tree program. The Pilgrims also planted natives outside their classroom later that afternoon. Everyone enjoyed the planting sessions and the school grounds look even more beautiful. I can't wait to see all those new trees flowering.

In 2014 the Rudolf Steiner College will be presenting a course called The Life Map:

In this course we will explore the maps of Goethe and Steiner and develop a compassionate ecology by learning new ways of seeing. The maps of polarity, the laws of metamorphosis, of three-fold observation, of earth, water, air and fire as modes of perception and the seven life processes will provide the starting points for a new ecoliteracy. (More information available at www.rudolfsteinercollege.com.au)

The Silver Tree Steiner School is pleased to be able to offer the opportunity for members of our school community to enroll to study this course right here at Silver Tree. The course requires a commitment to attending all components of the course throughout the year. Tutors Jennifer and Horst Kornberger will be presenting an information session to interested participants at Silver Tree on Tuesday 10th September 2013 at 5pm.

Please register your interest in attending this information session by emailing welcome@silvertree.wa.edu.au by 5th September 2013.

The children are coached on three different events each week: a throw, a run and a jump.

HEALTHY LUNCH BOXES A carefully prepared lunchbox is far more than just a healthy lunch. When children are away from home, a lovingly prepared 'parcel' of food provides a reassuring and powerful reminder of family love. No packaged food can achieve the same.

With the growing understanding we have these days of the benefits of good nutrition, not just for preventing disease and promoting well-being, but for its ability to support learning and concentration, allowing children to achieve their potential, we begin to fully appreciate the importance of the child's lunch. There's no doubt though, that providing food that's not only healthy but also appealing to the child when they're surrounded by the many distractions of school and doing it five days a week, is not easy, especially when you consider the time pressures on working parents.

So 'The Clever Packed lunch', a book written by Hazel Key, a Steiner mum who ran the organic tuckshop at Samford Valley Steiner School, will doubtless be a useful resource to help take the stress out of making lunches. And this full-colour book has been edited and approved by a qualified Nutritionist so that you can be sure the advice is sound.

The Clever Packed Lunch features mouth-watering, colourful images of the recipes. It includes some down-to-earth nutritional advice, a two week photographed menu, lots of time-saving ideas and tools to get you organised and all the recipes you need; in fact a complete system for preparing healthy lunch box food, whether you love to cook or not.

The Clever Packed Lunch is available as a printed or e-book from: <http://lunchideasforschool.com/store/>
